

Avec frontière

Baron Munchhausen was awarded land for his bravery. He had a map drawn up indicating his castle and the boundary separating his land from the King's. The Royal Surveyor confirmed that the map was correct.

During a peasants' revolt, after the castle was burnt to the ground, all that remained was the following document.

According to the fragment that was left, the peasants claim that their village doesn't belong to the Baron's estate and now they refuse to pay him any taxes.

The Baron is of a different opinion...
